COFFEE AND CONVERSATION SERIES

WE INVITE YOU TO JOIN US
OCTOBER 9, 2015
12:00-1:30 PM
THE KITCHEN-VENTURE LAB

LET’S TALK ABOUT TEAMWORK
Join your colleagues who teach Intellectual Foundations (UF), Communication in the Disciplines (CID), and Finishing Foundations (FF) courses for some coffee and a conversation about fostering effective teamwork.

Highlighted faculty will present digital posters about their work and answer your questions.

HIGHLIGHTED FACULTY
Jen Black and Steph Cox are lecturers in the English Department who have been teaching UF 100 together since 2012. They have team taught every variation on the course: 15-week plenary/discussion, 15-week online, 7-week summer online, and 5-week summer hybrid. This experience has provided them with many opportunities to study, practice, and teach about effective teamwork.

Cynthia Bradbury is an adjunct faculty member in the Anthropology Department. Cynthia began exploring cooperative learning techniques while teaching 8th graders from "the projects" in Norfolk, Virginia. At Boise State, she continues to use groups to provide structure for classroom activities, encourage students to take charge of their learning, and give students experience working closely with others.
